SMALL BUSINESS BESTOWS KANE WITH 100% VOTING RECORD

SHREWSBURY – Representative Hannah Kane (R-Shrewsbury) has earned a spot in the National Federation of Independent Business (NFIB) Massachusetts coveted “100% Club” for her perfect voting record on legislation that has a significant impact, either negative or positive, on the small business community in Massachusetts.

“It’s easy to claim to be a friend of small business but it is an entirely different thing to put your votes where your rhetoric is,” said NFIB Massachusetts state director, Bill Vernon. “Representative Kane’s 100% NFIB voting record is a testament to her steadfast support for small businesses in her district and throughout the Commonwealth. We are truly honored to work side by side with her on the issues that matter most to our members.”

The voting record was distributed to all NFIB small business members in the state ahead of the November elections as a guide to supporting lawmakers that have proven they stand by small business via their votes cast on bills before the legislature. While most elected officials claim to support small businesses, the NFIB voting record provides a clear indication of which state representatives and state senators are truly supportive of the community. This year, the focus included legislation that impacted sales, estate, and income taxes as well as workers compensation and employment laws.

“Small business is the backbone of our economy, so it is imperative that we oppose policies that hinder economic progress as well as support legislation that protects small businesses and encourages growth,” according to Representative Kane. “As a former small business owner myself, it is truly an honor to be acknowledged for supporting the number one job creators in our state, the small business community.”
